

Tanzanian Student Mailing Addresses

Letters mailed from the US generally take about two weeks to arrive in Iringa, Tanzania. From that point, timing will vary, because there is no home or business postal delivery in Tanzania, and people from remote rural areas must travel to Iringa to pick up their mail.

Another factor is whether you send your letter to the student's home address or to the school address. Students may travel home very infrequently throughout the year, due to the costs of travel, so your letters sent to the school address will usually reach the recipient sooner. On the other hand, students sometimes transfer from one school to another and it may be months before we are informed of the change.

For all correspondence addressed to the students' homes:
